Hit And Run Driver Damages Front Of Local Store

On April 27, at about 11 p.m. while Mr. Wolstenholme stepped out of his apartment behind the store, and entered the Royal Cafe for only a few minutes, a careless "hit and run" driver drove into the front of Mr. Wolstenholme's jewelry store with terrific force, pushing the right side of the front entrance in about six inches.

The driver, whoever it was, dashed away in a great hurry leaving the damages to be taken care of by Mr. Wolstenholme.

This is the second time the store has been crashed into in the same manner.

Leitch was struck and fatally injured while walking alone on a road by a car operated by Robert Gustavson, 20, of Coronation.

Police said apparently the car went out of control, struck the pedestrian, and then careened over a 12-foot bank, landing upside down. None of the six occupants was injured.

DIES IN COLLISION WITH TRAIN AT RAILWAY CROSSING

EDMONTON (BUP) — Seventeen-year-old Shannon Rowe of Clover Bar died last week in the Royal Alexandra Hospital here, a few hours after receiving multiple injuries in a train-car collision on 56th Street near 137th Avenue.

RCMP said the girl was driving alone in her car when it crashed into an east-bound CNR passenger train en route to Vegreville.

Police said the car was carried a short distance by the train and came to rest in about two feet of water in a near-by slough. The accident occurred at about 10 p.m.

The girl who had only bought the car Monday evening was taken to hospital by a passing motorist where she died at one a.m.

Dr. M. M. Cantor, chief provincial coroner, has ordered an inquest.

Hunting Party Tracks Down Prowling Bears

OLD TRAIL — A large mother bear and cubs have been prowling in Old Trail community. R. Frederick saw the bear and three of last year's cubs perched in a large tree, as he was hauling hay along the road near the school.

The presence of the bears caused the parents to be apprehensive about sending their children to school, while the bear was known to be in the vicinity.

Frank Frederick and his uncle scouted the area to see whether the bears were still around. He got one hasty shot at the mother bear, before she leaped out of the tree and rushed to attack them. Luckily, they escaped to a safe distance. Then they went back after the mother bear. They shot at her several times and she retreated down the road, the men still following her.

Mrs. R. Frederick, her son and William Sawchuk met the bears while driving toward the school. The horses became so excited they had to discontinue their journey.

The next day the men, now joined by Mr. Sawchuk, went to Plamondon to get another rifle and some more shells. Buddy Frederick next joined the hunting party and took along his dogs. They tracked down and killed one bear. It was reported that Mr. Meardi and Mr. Clutchie each killed a bear on the highway.

Health Notes

What Is Mental Health?

By PEGGY GRAHAM, Ph.N.

Mental health is so closely linked with how we think, feel and do, that it would be unwise, if not impossible, to tie it down to a single definition. There is, however, one quality common to people, who enjoy good mental health—emotional security.

Such persons are useful members of society, reasonably happy and well adjusted, who get along well with their families, friends, schoolmates and business associates.

They have their share of the "Blues", get into quarrels and once in a while lose their temper, but they have learned to take the ups and downs, the troubles and annoyances of everyday living with a minimum of damage to themselves and others.

As you'd expect these people are able to meet life's serious crises successfully.

Fortunately mental health isn't a case of "either you have it or haven't it." Just as physical health can be improved or become run down, so too with mental health, that is the encouraging thing about it and the one that seems to be the most misunderstood.

A weak or sickly individual can build better physical health and similarly most of us can do something about strengthening our own and our children's mental health.

Mental health isn't something that is separate from the rest of us, to be strengthened "with a set of exercises" or a "course of treatment". It is interlocked with our physical health, social life, church affiliation, family relationship, work and play and community participation. In short, good mental health might be described as something we have, or can develop from balanced living.

Regular adequate meals, right hours of sleep, fresh air, and exercise is time tried advice for good general health.

It applies to mental health, too, family life, the church, and social activities should play their important roles, each in reasonable proportions.

How a child is brought up, the kind of family spirit about him—this is what decides the kind of adult he or she will become.

The things that are so vital to sound mental health in children are basically simple—love and affection, praise and encouragement, a feeling of security in the home, a chance to really grow up without being smothered by too much love and too many "don'ts".

If mental illness could be measured by numbers in our mental hospitals, that alone would make it a great public health concern.

The tragic truth is that this is only a part of the mental picture. Problem children, discontented workers, unhappy homes, lonely and frustrated individuals, moody

PLOW DRILL

SAVE SOIL AND SOIL MOISTURE

In one trip, with a 3 or 4-bottom plow and Plow Drill, you plow soil or stubble, smooth the furrows for a firm and level seedbed, seed with a famous Moline-Monitor seeder and press each seedling into place. There is no side-draft because plow and Plow Drill are pulled through separate hitch points on the plow drawbar. Exclusive non-binding ball-and-socket hitch allows packer and drill to follow ground contours independently. One-trip operation checks soil erosion and helps retain precious soil moisture.

You get top performance from these features:

18-inch packer wheels, v-shaped for both sideways and downward cutting and crushing action... Sealed oil-impregnated hardwood bearings and sealed cone bearings used where best needed for long life and light draft... Zig-zag arrangement of drill discs prevents piling up of trash.

Semi-pneumatic rubber-tired press wheels flatten and expand as they turn, prevent soil from building up on wheels and help to absorb shocks... Choice of either lever lift or an exclusive power lift for raising and lowering discs. Turning with discs up reduces wear on discs and drawbar.

Stop in and let us show you all the Minneapolis-Moline Plow Drill features that give you top performance.

and irritable personalities, fears we can't explain, all these and many more are only too frequently signs of weaknesses in mental health.

It is impossible to calculate the terrific price, we as a nation are paying because of poor mental health, that is why vast continuing programs to promote better mental health for Canadians are being carried out by federal, provincial and municipal authorities and voluntary agencies.

PRACTICAL DENTISTRY-1888

By HENRY THOMPSON

McRAE—Harry House was suffering something terrible. No home remedy seemed to help him. The fearful pain was driving him crazy. For two days and two nights, he lay groaning and rolling or walking the floor.

Only when he sat before the fireplace with his cheek towards the heat, did he have any ease from the excruciating pain. He had fallen asleep and had almost plunged into the fire. His good woman had grabbed him away, as he almost ignited his hair, scattering burning brands over the hearth-place. His loving partner had cuffed him back into an awareness and had deprived him of even this slight relief.

Earlier in the day, he had been persuaded to fasten a strong sinew to the aching tooth, but whenever his wife attempted to put pressure on the string, he had yelled bloody murder and grabbed her hands.

Never, during his life-time of hunting buffalo or Indian wars had he ever been sick or experienced pain. He had never showed any sympathy for others in their complaints. Now he believed he was being doubly punished for his intolerance of pain in others.

Finally at daylight, he prepared to walk to his nearest neighbor for help — at least he would get more sympathy than he was getting at home. It was mid-summer, but the old man put on a heavy coat and muffled his jaw up in his wife's light shawl.

In the open air, the pain grew milder, but he had barely made a half mile when the pain started with renewed vigor. With every step the pains shot to the top of his head with devastating force.

Picking a roadside rock he sat down. Joseph did not want to die, and leave his good saddle horse and a small herd of cattle for his wife's hungry relatives to kill and eat.

The pain was worse than ever, but groaning in unrestricted loudness gave him some satisfaction. At least his wife was nowhere near to offer biting comment or scold at his cowardly behaviour.

"Hello, grandfather!" said a voice so close behind him that he leapt to his feet with the agility of more youthful days. "What is the matter with you?"

"Oh grandson, I think I am going to die. I haven't slept for two days and two nights. My old woman will not help me, as she thinks I am only pretending."

Gaddie could see the long sinew hanging from the old fellow's mouth and guessed the trouble at once. Stepping from his horse, but keeping a firm hold on the horse's bit, he approached the old man.

"Let me have a close look, grandfather, I think I can ease your pain. Open your mouth as wide as you can. I'll put some wee-case against the gum, that will help. Close your eyes, the sun will blind you". Quickly he tied the sinew end to the horse's bridle bit.

"Take your hands away from your mouth, I can't see what I am doing." His eyes still closed, as soon as the old man moved his hands down from his face, Gaddie slapped the horse on the nose with his glove. The horse reared back with a long pronged tooth dangling from the bit.

The old man grabbed for his mouth, with a gurgling yell. Too late, he opened his eyes to find blood on his hands, but strangely his pain was gone.

Gaddie was astride his horse by this time. Well he knew with what speed and efficiency these old chaps could wield a walking cane. Backing his horse to a safe distance, he watched the effect of his drastic operation. No further words were exchanged. The old man gave him one penetrating glare, then turned and walked toward his house, occasionally spitting blood as he went.

Gaddie anxiously watched his old friend until he was close to the door, then he got off his horse and cut the sinew off the bit ring and carefully buried the tooth under the rock. Perhaps he had lost a friend, anyway he was sure that the huge cavity in the tooth would not trouble the old chap any more.

Nomination Day, Air Cadets, May 1

Tuesday, May 1, was an important day in the lives of hundreds of top Air Cadets across Canada. Coming at the close of national Air Cadet Week, May 1st was designated by the Air Cadet League as "Nomination Day" for the special training awards provided by the League and the RCAF each summer.

During the following weeks League selection committees at both provincial and national levels will choose more than 1500 outstanding Air Cadets who will qualify for special rewards in 1956.

Two hundred and fifty of the Cadets will be granted RCAF flying scholarships covering 30 hours of actual flying instruction. The League will award up to 150 additional scholarships to qualified lads who do not fit within the RCAF quota. The four weeks' course will commence early in July at civilian flying clubs and schools spaced across the country. Successful graduates will qualify for the Air Cadet flying badge as well as private pilot's licenses.

One hundred cadets will be chosen for a seven weeks "Senior Leaders Course" to be held at RCAF Station, Camp Borden. Operated as a "junior staff college", the course will train cadets for future positions of responsibility with the squadrons.

Another one hundred cadets will be selected for an Air Cadet Drill Instructor's Course also to be held during the summer at Camp Borden. From this group will be chosen a 40-man precision drill squad which will compete with an American drill team for the General Beau Trophy at the Minnesota State Fair late in August.

A total of fifty-eight cadets will be hand-picked for the League's top award — an exchange visit trip to the United States, United Kingdom or continental Europe. Six countries have joined hands with Canada in this highly successful "get acquainted" scheme.

Names of the prize winning candidates will be announced by the Air Cadet League Headquarters, Ottawa, at the end of May.

Rev. Nainby Makes Tour Of Canadian Arctic

EDMONTON, (BUP) — The rector of Holy Trinity Church, back in Edmonton after a 3,000 mile airplane tour of the Canadian Arctic, says he was greatly impressed with the excellent work of northern Anglican missionaries.

Ven. Archdeacon W. Nainby says that the great problem facing the northland was the impact of the DEW radar line and the more frequent contact between our civilization and Indians and Eskimos, who have been virtually isolated in the past. He pointed out that 85 per cent of all Eskimos are members of the Anglican Communion.

The Archdeacon expressed satisfaction of the renewed interest of the federal government in the education and health of these living in the far north. The incidence of tuberculosis is reported to be on the decline, while the family allowances for Eskimos tended to protect them from the danger of starvation.

Canadians Timid, Says Banker

EDMONTON (BUP)—The president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank said last week in Edmonton that Canadian appear to have been "altogether too timid" in taking investment risks.

A. G. Ashford, who is touring western Canada, declared complaints of foreign investment in this country fall into the category of "biting the hand that fed you".

We are inclined to let the other fellow be the entrepreneur and, when the returns start coming in, to complain that the plums have gone elsewhere, he told the Edmonton Rotary Club.

Canada was going to need foreign investment, Ashford said and "economic nationalism" as a threat to the nation's future growth.

Legion To Aid Victoria Cross Winners

EDMONTON (BUP) — The Alberta command of the Canadian Legion announces that it has approved a grant of $100 to each holder of the Victoria Cross in the province who will attend the Victoria Cross centennial celebrations in London, Eng., this June.

The Alberta government has already announced a $200 grant to help cover incidental expenses of the trip. The $100 Legion grant, William Williams, president of the Alberta command said, will go to four VC winners in Alberta. They are Alex Brereton, Elnora, Brig. F. N. Harvey, Calgary; John Kinross, Loughheed and R. L. Zengel of Rocky Mountain House.

In addition, a $100 cheque will be mailed to John Chipman, a VC winner who lived in the province for 25 years before moving to Port Moody, British Columbia.

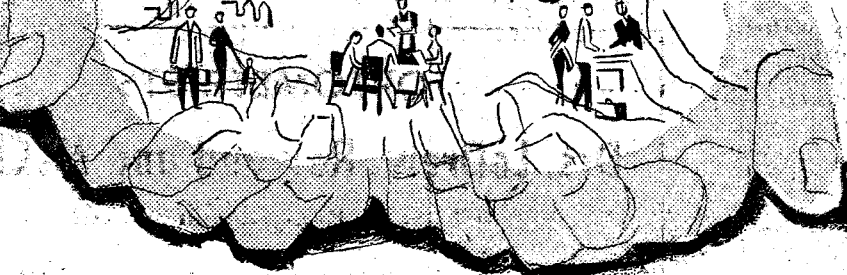

Home, Sweet Home

"Home, Sweet Home", says the Book of Knowledge, was written by the expatriate American actor John Howard Payne when he was in Paris looking for French plays suitable for the London stage. It came in an operetta, "Clari, the Maid of Milan", and its tune is a Sicilian air adapted by Sir Henry R. Bishop who was working with Payne.

Counting Canadians

The first census in Canada is said to have been taken in 1640, when the inhabitants numbered three hundred and seventy-five; in 1650 the population was seven hundred and five, and in 1663, about twenty-five hundred. The first census of the dominion, in 1871, showed three million, six hundred and thirty five thousand, and twenty-four people, the last, in 1951, listed fourteen million, nine thousand.

Now, Canada is about to take another important census of her population. These will occur henceforth in five-year periods, since growth has become so rapid that the decennial counts are now deemed insufficient. It is estimated that this June will show a population of about sixteen million.

The census reveals much more than mere head-counting. It supplies a great deal of information concerning Canadians which is helpful to the government and other agencies in planning for the economic and social welfare of all of us. The churches, too, will find the census informative and useful. All Canadians should co-operate fully with the census-takers who will call at every home. Seventeen thousand of them will be employed to take the count.

Modern Art

At this juncture in our march toward civilized progress, we would like to take a few shots at what is generally called "modern art". The editor poses as no expert on modern art, or even ancient art.

However, he does credit himself with average intelligence and that is all needed to recognize the fact that the modern art vogue is mainly a racket designed to separate suckers from an over-abundance of green, folding paper.

We must admit that by writing such blasphemy we run the risk of being accosted in a dimly-lit hallway by a half-crazed art lover. In spite of this possibility, we are going on record as saying that most modern art is usually hokum.

It is surprising how gullible the public sometimes is, and this fact is demonstrated very effectively by the peddlers of modern art. Real art, great paintings which prove restful or exhibit great talent, are treasures to be enjoyed for a lifetime. Portraits of loved ones are likewise valuable in many cases.

But the current version of modern art has no place in society, achieves no purpose, is not restful, or beautiful, and is strictly for the psychos. If you have made a blunder and have purchased such a monstrosity, paste a piece of beaverboard on the back of it and use it for a dart target. Or, break it over the head of the "painter" who sold it to you the next time he calls.

On Guiding Children

An expert recently explained that parents should set a thoughtful example to their children as far as their own mistakes are concerned. In other words, admit your mistakes to your children and do not play the role of the perfect human being.

The idea behind this advice is that you are not perfect and that, therefore, you are going to make mistakes. Therefore, when you step out of your car door into a manhole, or slam the window sash down on your fingers, your child will soon enough get the idea that you didn't plan it that way.

Remember that your child is also learning, and he or she is also making many mistakes daily. Therefore, a thoughtful attitude on your part and a frank admission to your children that you also make mistakes, but are trying to do better, will bring about a paralleling attitude among them.

In other words, they will make mistakes and strive to do better themselves, and, more than that, both of you can laugh at each other's mistakes—as long as the person laughing at you doesn't laugh too much.

Issues For The Next Election

(Calgary, Alberta)

Canada will probably have a federal election next year. Mr. John Diefenbaker, a leading Conservative MP, has listed the five major issues which he says will dominate that election. With a brief analysis of each appended, they are as follows:

(1) "Restoration of the supremacy of Parliament". What he refers to is the tendency of the cabinet to give orders to Parliament, rather than the other way around, possibly because of the "servile majority" the Liberal party has.

Mr. Diefenbaker has a good point, although he exaggerates it. There is no doubt that too many Liberal MP's regard their duty to be to rubber-stamp everything put before them by Mr. Howe, Mr. Harris and Mr. Gardiner.

But let us not forget that a large measure of "government by caucus" is not only permitted but necessary under Canada's system of responsible government and parliamentary democracy. It must be that way not only in the House of Commons but in provincial legislatures, and not only with the Liberal party but with any other party entrusted with office.

Further, what Mr. Diefenbaker objects to in the Liberal party goes on right inside his own party, and with much less excuse. To what extent are Conservative back-benchers permitted to oppose party policy as laid down by Mr. Drew? Is not the party's gas policy, for instance, decided at the top and supported by a servile majority within the party caucus? So what hope would there be for "restoring the supremacy of Parliament" by turning out the Liberals and putting in the Conservatives?

(2) Canada must reduce her production costs if she is to take more part in world trade, and since taxes are a big part of production costs, taxes must come down.

That sounds very fine, if one doesn't bother to think about it. But Mr. Diefenbaker knows that governments don't collect taxes for the fun of it. Every dollar raised is spent, for purposes set forth by Parliament. If Mr. Diefenbaker would collect less, either he would cut down expenditures or would increase the national debt and let future generations look after this generation's living expenses. The onus is on him to furnish details of how a Conservative government would run the nation's finances.

He will remember that in 1953 his party promised something like half a billion more expenditures, half a billion less in taxes, and a balanced budget. It was so ridiculous that countless people who might have voted Conservative couldn't bring themselves to do it. The Canadian people deserve better than another dose of that.

(3) Agriculture is not receiving a fair share of the national income.

That is largely true, but except for short-term emergency measures does Mr. Diefenbaker suggest it is in the power of governments to make it otherwise? If so, how?

We would put it this way: "Agriculture" as such is not entitled to anything. It is the people who are entitled to fair shares. If there are too many people in agriculture so that each gets less than his share, then some of them must and will move out. The long-term problem of correlation of income is beyond the scope of governments. The people must work it out themselves.

(4) The Liberal government's "threat" of compulsory arbitration in labor disputes.

What was the stand of the Conservative party toward compulsory arbitration at the time of the last railway strike? If the issue comes before Parliament again, would it vote to let the dispute take its natural course, including a strike?

While the Liberal government's policy on this—to the extent it has a policy—may not be popular with labor officials, it is necessary and we are sure most people would support it.

(5) The "increasing domination" of Canadian industry and resources by American interests.

That issue lends itself to passion and demagoguery. But we are sure that before an election campaign concluded, the voters would come to realize that a good deal of this nation's expansion was possible only through the entry of American capital, and if it is shut out now, either Canada would go back or the people would have to reduce their standard of living to find the money to make up for what they exclude.

Note and Comment

In 1925, Western Canada farmers had one tractor for every 60 horses. In 1955 they had one tractor for every 3 horses. In 1905 Canadian manufacturers turned out one car every three days. In 1955 they produced 1,300 cars every day.—Imperial Oil Review.

GOOD OLD JOE

In your issue of April 11, you have an editorial on "The Same Old Russian Nature" in regard to an evaluation of Stalin that now comes from Soviet sources. Some of the general information we get is true and much is conjecture, and fabrication.

The only principle that matters in the affairs of mankind is the truth and we should stick to the facts in all honesty in estimating the information about Stalin now being revealed. You quote statements of respect for Stalin at the time of his death by Malenkov, Molotov, Tim Buck and A. A. McLeod. They are true.

However, you have no authentic basis for your editorial statement "Kruschev, the present Premier of Russia, speaking at the Communist party convention in Moscow last month said, 'Stalin murdered five thousand Red Army officers', and continued, 'we never knew when we entered Stalin's present whether we would come out alive'." (end of quote).

In the first place, Krushchev is not the premier of Soviet Russia, he is secretary of their Communist party. Bulganin is Premier. All the authentic information about the recent convention is available at World Books, 9640 Jasper Ave., Edmonton. I have critically examined every report by Krushchev and others given at the convention and do not find any such statement as you publish in your editorial.

From sources that are not authentic, there are reports that such a statement was made at a "closed session" of the Soviet Communist party. There is a spate of rumors, exaggerations and falsehoods about what is reported to have taken place at this "secret session". Nobody knows the facts except those who were present and, so far, nobody has revealed what transpired.

There is an article in "Pravda" on the role of Stalin, some of it in appreciation while critical of some aspects of his actions. It contains nothing resembling what you publish.

I have no intention of trying to condemn Stalin or to praise him but believe that in the interests of the truth you should stick to facts and should publish this answer to your editorial.

Promises Are Soon Forgotten

In the latest letter of one of your regular CCF correspondents, he complains that previous to the election, both Liberals and CCF's made a bid for the farmers' vote with promises of electrifying the farm homes, free of charge. When the CCF members brought up a resolution in the legislature regarding this, the SC government turned it down and the Liberal leader said nothing. You'd think this correspondent would realize by now that political promises are made only to build a platform for the party nominees to stand on until the ballots are counted. It's the politician who gets elected that has secure economy for at least four years. As soon as the election is over, the promises are laid away and forgotten and John Vo'er is not even looked upon as a human being until the four years are up; then more promises are made to build a political platform.

I was surprised at this correspondent's outcry about the way some politicians ignore the platform they ran for and try to get on

DISPLEASED WITH SCHOOL SYSTEM

I noticed in your paper an invitation to write on our thoughts of the present school system. In my opinion, children should be taught the sounds of the letters of the alphabet. Last year my child attended school and did not pass. He was told to do number work out of a book he could not read. The children read only what they memorize.

The school bus couldn't get through the blocked roads and children who use the bus missed their classes. With spring weather the bus is unable to get through again, and Dunstable school was closed since the first warm weather until April 16. This is not the fault of the bus driver. The government should build roads first—then consolidated schools.

When the schools were scattered over the country, people knew where their children were and could take them to and from the school. Now they have to take them almost as far to the bus. Our bus route is 10 miles long—a little too far to drive children to and from school with a team in the mud. This could total 40 miles a day.

I would suggest to people who still have their little schools to think twice before jumping to the consolidated school. True, many people like them, but they are the ones that live close. I would like them too if I lived close.

I've heard on the radio at different times, mayors boasting of the schools in their towns, but they never mention that other small towns have no schools and that the taxpayers from a large area help pay for these schools. I would like to hear someone, someday, give credit to these taxpayers for helping to pay for the schools.

LAMB QUINTUPLETS

Noting the story of the birth of four lambs at Rockford in your "Herald" of April 13, we thought the following news story may be of interest.

VAVENBY — Lambing is in progress now at the Jack Moilliet ranch. Great excitement prevailed recently when an ewe gave birth to five lambs, an unusual number.

The Kamloops Sentinel, in which the story appeared has asked Mrs. Pearson if she can obtain pictures, and we understand that the shepherd did take some. Jack Moilliet is a very well-known rancher here in the Valley of the North Thompson and the story of the unusual event is quite authentic.

Vavenby, by the way, is about 90 miles above Kamloops on the much-discussed "Yellowhead Route."

ATHABASCA — Funeral services for Henry H. Dakin, who passed away at his home on Easter Sunday, April 1, at the age of 86 years, were held in St. Phillippe Roman Catholic Church in Atmore on April 4 at 10 a.m. Rev. Father Noel officiated and interment was made in the church cemetery.

The pallbearers were six sons, Ray, Lloyd, Frank, George, Fred and Gordon.

Mr. Dakin was born in 1870 of Scottish and Irish parents in Digby, Nova Scotia. After his mother's death and at the age of 9, he went to sea as a cabin boy. Upon the death of his wife, he married again and raised 9 children to his second marriage.

In World War I, Mr. Dakin was made a captain in the navy during which time, he survived the Halifax explosion with many scars. During World War II, he again served in Canada. In 1919 the family came to the Dakin homestead, which has been their home until the time of his passing.

In 1935, he was elected to the Legislature and represented the Liberal party until 1939.

Besides his loving wife, he is survived by six daughters and 11 sons; Pearl (Mrs. V. Pinkes) in New York; Irene (Mrs. D. Stanchfield), New Westminster, B.C.; Rita (Mrs. C. As the parish of St. Phillippe was established last year, Mr. Dakin's is the first burial. A granddaughter, the first baptism, a grandson the first marriage and his son the first funeral service before the land for a cemetery was blessed.

THE GREAT PRETENDER

By DIANE PUE

I often wish that I could be projected back through the ages and visit the great men of history. You know, in one of those fantastic time machines such as Alley Oop uses in the comics. I'd go straight back along the path of time — the fourth dimension. With my superior knowledge, gained not by personal experience, but by the writings of the sages of the ages, I'd tell them what they were doing wrong and show them how to do it right.

First of all, in my long journey back through time, I should like to go to Athens and the home of the celebrated Greek philosopher, Socrates. I would tell him that he was right in not worshipping the gods and goddesses of the Acropolis. That there was only one God, and well that such worship would do no good, because the world soon found out that there was only one God. But I could have saved him from taking poison, but how could I have proven him innocent?

Then I should like to make the acquaintance of Hippocrates, the Father of Medicine, and with the help of the Medical Encyclopedia, explain the mysteries of anatomy. I'd tell him that he would be revered by medical students two thousand years after his time, and more.

Saving Archimedes the extreme embarrassment of losing his towel on a public street would be another job I'd relish. I'd explain to him his principal of buoyancy (but then there would not be the perennial expression, "Eureka, I have found it!")

During my stay in Greece I'd visit Aristotle, see plays at the Dionysus by Euripedes and Homer, visit the Parathion, watch the Olympic games — just everything. My next stop would be Rome, at the time of Julius Caesar. I would tell him of the plot against his life, — but would he believe me? Likely not, for Brutus was his truest friend.

But more than anything I'd want to do, more than anyone I'd like to see, that person would be Christ, at the Last Supper. Just to see Him, and hear Him speak would be enough. Then I would travel with Peter and John to help spread the Most Important Event of all time.

I'd want to go to England, and Sherwood Forest to meet Robin Hood, Little John, Will Scarlet, and the rest of the Merry Men. I'd ask Robin's permission to take a shot at that villainous sheriff of Nottingham. Then I would track down those plotting against the throne of King Richard.

After doing all this I'd cross the Channel to the terror-stricken land of France during the Revolution, and help save a few of the great men and women who were unjustly executed, like Lavoisier, discoverer of the oxidation process, and Marie Antoinette.

These and other missions accomplished I would return to the world of 1956, fully expecting a change. Things would be different alright, for there I'd have changed the course of history and world would be in a greater mess than it was before.

Wife, Mistress
'Shared Bed'

LONDON — A housewife told a judge here she had to share a kitchen as well as a bed with her husband's mistress.

Mrs. Alice Beeston said the situation was "bound to create friction."

Judge James Bacter agreed and issued an order restraining Mrs. Beeston's husband from throwing her out of the house to make room for Mrs. Carmen Gibson, the alleged mistress.

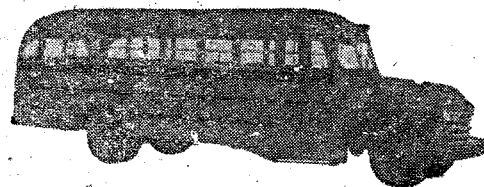

He ruled that Mrs. Beeston should live on the ground floor in the future while her husband and his mistress shared the top floor.

"This sort of thing is very unsettling," he said.

Under the cornerstone of the Alberta Legislature Buildings, laid October 1st, 1909, by Governor Earl Grey, were placed copies of each of the three Edmonton newspapers, a complete set of plans of the building, a copy of the pay sheet and a list of the officials who had supervised the construction work.

EXHIBITION PARADE TO SALUTE GREY CUP FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

EDMONTON (BUP) — The parade which will be held before the official opening of the 78th annual Edmonton Exhibition, July 16, will have sport as its theme this year.

James Paul, general manager of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, announces that the parade will especially salute Edmonton's Grey Cup football champions. It is intended to present a panoramic view of all sports activities in the Edmonton district.

"It will provide an opportunity for members of the community to pay tribute to the great sportsmen and sportswomen of Northern Alberta, who have won enviable reputation for this part of the country in various fields of athletic achievement", James declares.

Exhibition officials are confident that this year's "Grey Cup" parade will be the biggest and best one yet. Many clubs, business firms, and other organizations have already come forward with assistance and suggestions. A record number of entries are expected.

Last year the parade theme was the Golden Jubilee of Alberta. A vast crowd estimated at more than citizens of this sport-keen city. All indications are that many well-known stars of the gridiron past and present will be on hand for the July event.

150,000 lined Jasper Avenue to watch the one-hour parade as the Mercury climbed over the 100 mark.

There were about 50 floats depicting historic scenes in the growth of the province and 34 bands, including several military ones. The Exhibition was opened by Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal.

It has not yet been announced who will do the honors this July 16th. Marilyn Bell, the Toronto wonder swimming star, has been mentioned as a possible.

Parade organizer Bud Poile suggests stores along the route to be taken participate in the gala occasion by adding a little color in the form of decorating store windows or buildings. He says many pictures of athletes, past and present, and group photographs of the Eskimos, football and baseball, Flyers, Oil Kings and Towne Hallers.

The idea of honoring the 'greats' in the field of sports has been greeted with enthusiasm by the

Perk Up, It's May!

By DORIS MONTALBETTI

If you're anything like me, you have had just enough winter for a while. And probably you're planning to pack up those winter clothes soon, if you haven't done it already. Make sure the clothes are clean before you put them away for the summer. Between them, dirt and moths can make a sorry mess of a garment, given time. For protection against moths, store the clothes in polythene bags and sprinkle or spray the garments well with moth killer.

One lady I know, used the old standby protection of wrapping things in newspaper without moth balls or spray. She had the unhappy experience of discovering socks, mitts, and scarves with huge holes, when she took them out of storage. It's true moths don't like newspaper, but that alone is not enough protection; you must also use moth crystals or killer of some kind.

Have you taken your summer dresses out of storage yet? Here is how to perk up the net crinolines: Soften two envelopes plain gelatine in 1/2 cup cold water. Dissolve in 1 quart boiling water. Dip garment thoroughly. Let drip dry. Pull gently to shape as drying. DO NOT IRON. For other materials, try using a liquid starch, following instructions carefully. A friend of mine used to paint the starch on with a brush. To stiffen fine fabrics: voiles, organdy, silks and veiling: pour 1 quart boiling water over 1/4 lb. white gum arabic (from drug store). Let stand in warm place overnight. Strain through cheesecloth. Keep in corked bottle. Use 1-3 tablespoons starch liquid to each cup of water.

The following Edmontonians were visiting here during the weekend, Nadie Kowalyk, Fred and Steve Kadylo and Bill Choma. Mike Kowalyk was out working all winter. He is now renting Antoniuk's farm.

MOUNTED PLOWS

better farming

For WD and WD-45; 3-bottom Mounted Plows in 12-, 14- and 16-inch sizes; for CA: 2-bottom Mounted Plows in 12- and 14-inch sizes.

The trend is to mounted plows and Allis-Chalmers "built-on-the-square" design is a symbol of good farming as well as great strength. Free-Swinging from a single hitchpoint the plow follows contours naturally ... high clearance helps you cover trash ... natural line of draft assures uniform plowing depth.

Tough, spring steel frame and beams are set at right angles to each other and rigidly braced. No other design gives you so much resistance to twisting, springing or misalignment. Triple-strength shares—3/4 in. thick, with up to 20 percent more metal, give you correspondingly longer wear.

LOCAL TALENT REPRESENTED IN "SEARCH FOR TALENT" SEMI-FINAL

More than 30 talented young Northern Alberta citizens will take to the stage and the airwaves on Saturday night, May 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the Ninth Annual A.C.T. Search for Talent Semi-final show to be held at the Edmonton Sales Pavilion.

These acts are the winners of programs held in 24 Northern Alberta towns during the past year, under the joint sponsorship of the Associated Canadian Travellers and Radio Station CFRN.

From the 24 acts in this show, 10 will be chosen on the basis of popular vote to compete in a final program on May 26, for cash awards.

Popularity is indicated by the number of votes cast for any act through donations to the Northern Alberta Crippled Children's Fund during the week following the semi-final show.

Each 25c contributed represents one vote for a favorite act. Votes may be sent in by mail, or may be handed to one of the Associated Canadian Travellers present at the show.

These men have been going out with the show every Saturday night during the season, and will be on hand at this semi-final show to accept votes from the audience.

In addition to those contestants who were winners of the popularity vote throughout the season, there will be four additional contestants, selected for outstanding talent, who will compete for the CFRN Banff School of Fine Arts Scholarship Award. These are Mary Ellen Duggan, Camrose; Norman Demert, Devon; Marion Walker, Fort Saskatchewan; and Victoria Karpiak, Camrose. Popular winners from each town were:

Bruderheim, Barbara Rosnau; Wildwood, Rheen Sisters; Hay Lakes, Nelson Anderson; Clyde, Len McCluskey; Vilna, Mary Laschuk; Two Hills, Mariorie Bodnarek, Sonja Bwasluk and Marion Gully; Redwater, Cecil McKee; Camrose, Maria Wong; Drayton Valley, Evelyn Makar and Tony Osadchuk; Wetaskiwin, Stanley Hazelwood; Willingdon, Kay Nickifor; Westlock, Joan Melochuk; Mannville, Ruth Gamble; Ponoka, Betty Munn; Stony Plain, Emma Petri & Cathy Sinner; Rimbey, John Szerkiak; Onoway, Rosie Schneider, Shirley Roberts and Lena Matz; Barrhead, Alice Werner and Shirley Ann Rendfleisch; Devon, Teddy Dezall; Sedgewick, Marylyn Lukens; To-field High School Quintet; Fort Saskatchewan, Sonia Wakal; Morinville, Paul Majeau; Bashaw, Sandra Sunset.

During the past nine years, "Search for Talent" has not only discovered and supported talented Albertans, but also has raised well over $250,000 for the Crippled Children's Fund, which has given help and encouragement to hundreds of crippled children, by providing medical and surgical care, wheelchairs, and orthopedic appliances when required.

A total of six vans have been provided, to give the children transportation, and, at the present time, nearly 400 crippled children of the cities, towns and villages of Northern Alberta are being helped by the fund.

The ACT-CFRN Search for Talent Shows each season are produced by Jack Dennistoun — monte. Following the CFRN "Search for Talent" broadcast each week, well-known Edmonton entertainers present the fast-moving "ACT Variety Review."

Chairman of the Crippled Children's fund is L. F. "Larry" Thompson; vice-chairman, J. F. "Jack" Ingram; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. P. C. "Marge" Webber. The committee consists of 25 members of the Edmonton Club of the Associated Canadian Travellers.

Egg Lake

Several farmers, discouraged by the low price of farm products and tempted by high wages paid elsewhere, are leaving their farms. Some have rented their land, but several will leave the land uncultivated.

Oscar Duperron is building himself a house at Drayton Valley and will be staying there.

Robert Lemay came home for the weekend and has taken his wife with him to Drayton Valley for a short visit; Edmond Duperron, Amedee Duperron, Edmond Pare and Peter Pszysiezny have all left to look for employment at Drayton Valley; Others have left for Anzac.

Phillipa Lemay and Maurice Lebeouf have done some work on the roads to try to make them passable. They have filled the culverts that had been washed out and filled a few holes, but the roads are still impassable for anything but horse-drawn vehicles.

Edmond Pare has rented his farm to Joseph L'Heureux and James Rudiger.
